Hearings on the natural gas pipeline were suspended for a time this morning as leading legislators prowled the Capitol for enough votes to override Gov. Sarah Palin's recent budget vetoes.

Right now, it looks like the leadership isn't confident it has the votes. To override Palin, 45 of the 60 senators and representatives meeting in a joint session would have to vote in favor.

Palin last month used her veto pen to ax about $268 million from state budgets lawmakers had passed in April for next year.

Some top Republican lawmakers including Senate President Lyda Green of Wasilla are frustrated with the popular Republican governor's second straight year of cuts and today are trying to mount the difficult veto override.

The lawmakers, meeting in special session on the natural gas pipeline, don't have much time.

Under the rules, they have through tomorrow to carry off a veto override. But many lawmakers are expected to go home this weekend, so from a practical standpoint it probably has to happen today if at all.

Lawmakers are circulating lists through the Capitol showing a total of about $81 million in vetoed projects - dozens of items - they're aiming to restore.

Many involve health, safety and school needs.

Among Anchorage and Mat-Su items on the lists:

* Computer equipment for Rabbit Creek and Oceanview elementary schools, $15,000 each * Totem East Anchorage ball fields, $120,000

* Wasilla recycling center, $1 million

* Expansion of Covenant House in Anchorage, $1.1 million

* Anchorage Fire Department Station 6 replacement in Muldoon, $6 million

* Anchorage Police Department headquarters expansion, $17.5 million

Republican lawmakers including Rep. Kevin Meyer, R-Anchorage, say Palin had signaled she wouldn't veto some of the items she did.

They believe the state, flush with billions of dollars in surplus oil money, can well afford to spend more for projects they say local communities and organizations consider priorities.

Palin, however, has said some of the spending isn't the state's responsibility, and she wants to slow the growth of state budgets for the years when Alaska might not be so rich.

If lawmakers can override her vetoes, it would mark a significant political victory for them against a governor whose popularity has seemed to overpower the legislative branch.

Should be fascinating to see how it plays out!

JUNEAU - Gov. Sarah Palin's budget vetoes appear safe from a legislative override.
Several high-ranking lawmakers say the chances to get 45 out of 60 lawmakers to support an override are just about gone.
Lawmakers still have until 11:59 p.m. Saturday to override some or all of Palin's $268 million capital budget cuts.
This morning, a special session hearing on a gas line proposal was delayed an hour while members of the House and Senate discussed their options, but they could not agree on what projects should be put back on the books.
By the time hearings resumed, members of the finance committees said their best effort had come up short.

Subject: Water/Mining Initiative Info re lawsuits

The AG's Office filed papers today to partially resolve the water/mining initiative issues. Here's our fact sheet (Jay is forwarding to Mike Nizich and Sharon L. in case your office gets any calls).

What happened?

- All parties have agreed to dismiss the 07WATR appeal and allow the Alaska Supreme Court to resolve whether 07WTR3 should be on the ballot. Simply put, the first water/mining initiative (07WATR) would not be on the ballot, and the AK Supreme Court would decide whether 07WTR3 should be on the ballot.
- The agreement between initiative sponsors, mining interests, and the State of Alaska would leave in place Judge Blankenship's (Fairbanks) order enjoining the state from putting the 07WATR initiative on the ballot. It would have the AK Supreme Court vacate Judge Torrisi's (Dillingham) decisions and order regarding 07WATR.
- On Friday, the State of Alaska, the 07WATR sponsors, and 07WATR opponents jointly asked the Alaska Supreme Court to:
  - vacate the Dillingham Superior Court's order to distribute signatures booklets to sponsors of 07WATR.
  - dismiss the State's appeal to the Alaska Supreme Court of the Dillingham Superior Court's decision to certify 07WATR
  - dismiss the 07WATR sponsors' appeal to the Supreme Court of the Fairbanks Superior Court's decision that 07WATR constituted an appropriation.

What does this mean for voters?

- If the Alaska Supreme Court agrees to the request, 07WATR will not appear on the ballot
- Whether 07WTR3 appears on the August Primary ballot is yet to be decided by the Alaska Supreme Court, regardless of the outcome of the joint request.

Who's involved?

- 07WATR sponsors (Holman, Hobson, Akelkok);
- 07WATR opponents (Pebble Limited Partnership, Council of Alaska Producers, Alaska Federation of Natives (AFN) and Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act Association of CEO's (ANCSA);
- State of Alaska, Lt. Governor Parnell (who originally declined to put 07WATR on the ballot on constitutional grounds).

Why did this partial resolution of the water/mining initiatives occur?

- All parties agreed that 07WATR should not appear on the upcoming ballot.
- All parties agree that having two related initiatives on the same ballot fosters confusion.
- Additionally,
  - The sponsors of the initiative believe that 07WTR3 accomplishes the principal goals of 07WATR.
  - The Lt. Governor and the initiative opponents believe that 07WATR should not appear on the ballot because it is an appropriation of state assets, which is unconstitutional. .

- Oral arguments in the case will take place on June 16. The state has requested that the Supreme Court decide what will appear on the ballot by July 10, so that ballots can be printed on time.

Subject: We Need Energy NOW!

June 6, 2008

A few months ago I met with Representative Jay Ramras concerning energy costs. I suggested to him that our State, with its immense wealth, needed to help relieve our citizens of the huge burden they are carrying caused by the continually rising cost of energy. Today, crude oil prices reached all time highs of $139.00 plus per barrel making Alaskan's energy requirements all the more desperate.

While the AGIA and competing natural gas lines are good for Alaska in the long run they will do little to reduce energy costs for at least 10 years. Enstar Natural Gas Company has proposed to build a smaller gas line from the North Slope to Fairbanks then on to Cook Inlet. This line could be delivering low cost natural gas to Alaskans in five years! The State of Alaska continues to enjoy extraordinary income from oil revenues caused by record prices. Ironically, the same record prices are destroying Alaskan's economic future. I have heard that Fairbanks may lose 20% of its population in the next year if economic trends continue. What good does 45 billion dollars in the bank do if the State's citizens are going broke and leaving?

We need to show our Legislators and our Governor that Alaskans are in need and we need their immediate help. I have heard that at least one of our local State Senators thinks this rally is point less. Let us show him and the rest of his peers just what the point is, and that is, Alaskans are not going to allow our State Government to conduct business as usual. Our elected officials need to fully understand that our government is here to serve its citizens---not the other way around. These extra ordinary times requires extra ordinary actions.

Please join me and thousands of other Alaskans at the Carlson Center Thursday, June 12th from 5-5:30PM.

Thank you, Bill

From the information I know about you, I think you would be an excellent choice for such a position of prominence, with your history of fiscal responsibility and real ethics, I believe you would be a great asset to the future of the USA as well as helping in redirecting the Republican Party to the ideals that the majority of America believe in: smaller government, civil liberties and ethics.

I hope that your lawsuit with the US will change the polar bears' status. I am at a loss for what is happening to our country... I am beginning to think our congress is selling our country out for their own benefit.

Congratulations on your new baby. We know five families who have down syndrome children and each one would say that their down syndrome child brought special blessing to each member of their family. As the rumor's float about as you becoming a possible running mate for the VP slot, I simply wanted to say that I was so excited about that prospect that it literally sent chills through me.

I hope that if you are approached to do so that you will strongly consider it. I think having a strong conservative voice in the office will greatly benefit the Republican party, and will go a long way towards regaining focus.

While I would certainly understand why you might not want to accept such a position, especially with having a new born, I look forward to casting my ballot for you.

RE: Fuel subsidy

I hope Governor Palin doesn't give credence to those who would try to effect social engineering by keeping fuel prices high.

I think it is only reasonable that residents of an energy rich State like ours should recieve some sort of direct benifit from those resources.

A subsidy at the supplier level seems a logical course.

PS--Kudos for supporting Commissioner Joe Schmidt. Its about time somebody stood up to a public employee union.

Governor:

We have made progress getting details on costs, federal tax issues, coverage issues, impacts on Alaskans through deductions or setoffs that our energy program benefits would have on existing federal assistance programs like foodstamps, etc. (hold harmless issues) and several other misc. issues. The federal tax issue is one of the most important issues because if we can avoid federal taxes, we avoid losing 20-30% of every dollar we put into the program to taxes.

There are a lot of rumors in the halls about these issues. Our goal is to get the facts to Steve so he can put together the best possible proposals for payments to utilities and debit cards. Privileged or Personal Materia Privileged or Personal Material Redacted Thanks,

Dear Governor Palin

I am writing you again hoping you will revisit your veto of $2 million dollars for the swimming pool for the Bethel region. I recently sent you the drowning statistics since the 1990's and newspaper clippings giving you the history of our effort to get a swimming pool/multi use facility. I don't know that you would have received it before the veto but I am hoping you can look that over as part of your reconsideration. Not only do we believe this will provide the opportunity to learn water safety and how to swim, it will also provide theraputic opportunities and provide a much needed healthy alternative to address some of our problems such as diabeties, obesity and alcoholism. Healthy outlets for all people living out here are much needed.

The citizens of Bethel showed their support by voting in a one cent increase on the sales tax for two years then a half a cent for 18 years for the operation, maintenance & construction for this project. An endowment fund is being set up so that 20 years from now when the sales tax ends we can still pay for it. Your reconsideration would support our efforts. Please call me at 543-3239 (home) at any time if you have questions.

Sincerely,

Beverly A. Hoffman, Chair
Bethel Ad Hoc Recreation Facility Committee

Your administration is full of inappropriate behavior of government employees. Point in question..How ethical are you and your administration? It is clear and transparent that it is Not.

I am not the kind of person that writes letters or sends emails, but something told me to write you, maybe it is because I am worried about this country and the up coming elections. The article I read, said you would be a good choice for V.P. running mate for McCain. I am really not a McCain fan, and I am NOT an Obama fan. In this country I believe the Presidency is bought, who has the most money, backed by big companies. I will try to further the issue with her office and see if something can't be done to correct the dangerous deficiencies present on this road.

I have been working with two of our Assemblypersons, Chris and Sheila, to keep this problem in the spotlight (see forwarded message trail) and I will be attending the LRSA board meeting on the 9th (next Monday evening). Hopefully we can get this corrected before we see an accident involving a runner or a bicyclist.

As a homeowner on Nancy Lake I was extremely disheartened and disappointed to see that you vetoed the budget request to upgrade our roads on the "Nancy Lake Peninsula". These roads were never developed to any standards, let alone borough standards.

The Nancy Lake Homeowners Association worked through the prioroitization and ranking process with the Borough Roads Supervisors and Jim Norcross who identified this as the number one request from this road district. It then went to the Mat-Su Borough who also identified this as their highest priority budget request for this district.

Sen Huggins and Rep Nuemann both fully supported this project.

You asked that budget request projects be vetted, ranked and have support from all regulatory, governing and oversight bodies to make it through your vetting process. This project had all of that, and more.

As such, we are totally dismayed and confused that you would not only veto a portion of this funding request, but that you vetoed the entire request.

Please advise what we need to do to receive budget funding approval from your administration for this project next year, when our request will be for more money as fuel, labor and material costs will be significantly higher.

Respectfully submitted,

Devery Prince, President

Thank you, thank you, thank you. I am so pleased you are suing for the right to explore for oil and help make the nation enegry independent. Too bad criminal charges against some members of congress and a former president could not have been included. The next couple of years in prison might have helped them become rational, logical, and learn some common sense. And, for your sake, please stay as far away as you can from Senator McCain - a walking disaster.

Marty- the six weeks of mid-June through July are the most valuable days in AK for travel to communities I haven't been able to access through winter months - and I may actually see the King Air available for a bit of my travel in July (DPS is promising I'll get my turn to use it at least a few times soon! I hope...) - so I need to know how important it actually is to spend some of those days in Canada. I'd rather spend the time working in AK communities during these coming weeks, unless you believe an Ottawa visit is very important at this time.

ED REVIEW

June 6, 2008

...a bi-weekly update on U.S. Department of Education activities relevant to the Intergovernmental and Corporate community and other stakeholders

COMMENCEMENT ADDRESSES

In both of his 2008 commencement addresses -- at the Air Force Academy on May 28 (http://www.whitehouse.gov/news/releases/2008/05/20080528-2.html) and Furman University on May 31 (http://www.whitehouse.gov/news/releases/2008/05/20080531-3.html) -- President Bush extolled students for "a resurgence of personal responsibility" and pushed them to continue their commitment to family, community, and country. "You're the 50th graduating class in the history of the academy," the President noted before cadets in Colorado Springs. "Each of you is a volunteer who stepped forward to accept the burdens of war, knowing all the dangers you would face upon graduation. You willingly risk your lives and your futures so that our country can have a future of freedom and peace.... A nation that produces citizens of virtue, character, and courage like you can overcome any challenge and defeat any adversary." Similarly, in Greenville, South Carolina: "I was impressed when I heard that nearly two-thirds of you balanced your academic studies this year with outreach to your community," the President said. "Through such works of compassion, you've learned early in life that nothing is more fulfilling than putting the needs of others ahead of your own.... And, as you leave this campus today, my call to you is this: strengthen this rising culture of responsibility by serving others, contributing to our civic life, and being accountable to yourself and your families."

COMMUNITY SERVICE

Continuing this thread, the final "Education News Parents Can Use" broadcast (June 17, 8:00-9:00 ET) of the 2007-08 season will showcase the work of the USA Freedom Corps, the Corporation for National and Community Service, and other federal, state, local, private, and philanthropic programs devoted to creating a "culture of service and responsible citizenship." Like the members of generations who came before them, America's youth have time and talents to share with those in need. Solid research indicates that young people have a lot to gain from volunteering -- including increased academic achievement, increased civic engagement, and positive character development -- and, in turn, feel more empowered and connected to their community. Through dedicated service, students can see how their actions make an impact, are exposed to positive role models, and become vested in organizations that make contributions to society. The broadcast will also feature a special segment on reading and learning during the summer, highlighting the Department's Reading First program. FOR MORE INFORMATION, PLEASE GO TO http://www.ed.gov/edtv/. (You can watch archived webcasts at http://www.connectlive.com/events/ednews/.)

Note: At USA Freedom Corps' "Call to Summer Service" web site (http://www.usafreedomcorps.gov/about_usafc/special/summer.asp), you can search hundreds of thousands of volunteer opportunities by location and area of interest and tap resources to get started.

NCLB UPDATE

In a June 3 letter to Chief State School Officers (http://www.ed.gov/admins/lead/account/saa.html#peerreview), Assistant Secretary for Elementary and Secondary Education Kerri Briggs commended states for the work they have done to implement high-quality standards and assessment systems and furnished a fact sheet with information on the Department's standards and assessment system status designations and implications of those designations. As of now, the systems in 32 states have received "full approval" or "full approval with recommendations," while the systems in three states have been designated "approval expected." It is unlikely that all the remaining states will have fully approved standards and assessment systems by the end of the 2007-08 school year. Moreover, some states that have approved systems may revise their standards or assessments in ways that result in systems that do not meet all No Child Left Behind requirements. Accordingly, the Department will continue its usual practice of designating states to reflect their level of compliance.

Starting next week, The Achiever newsletter will be available solely online, providing a greater focus on how successful schools across the U.S. are working toward the goal of the No Child Left Behind Act: to have every student reading and doing math at grade-level by 2014. The latest story, presented as a photo narrative, spotlights a Kansas school on a military base. At one time, Ware Elementary School was considered a chronically under-performing school. Today, as a result of specific reforms (detailed within), 99.6% of students are proficient in reading and 100% of students are proficient in math. And, Ware has exceeded the Adequate Yearly Progress (AYP) goals for Kansas, earned a No Child Left Behind Blue Ribbon School designation, and received a Title I Distinguished School Award. FOR MORE INFORMATION, PLEASE GO TO http://www.ed.gov/achiever/.

Education Week's third-annual "Diploma Counts" report explores the rapid growth of state-level P-16 or P-20 councils and how they seek to create a more seamless schooling continuum. The report also updates a unique, online mapping tool that allows users to zoom in on each of the nation's school districts and access graduation rate data for that district or its high schools. FOR MORE INFORMATION, PLEASE GO TO http://www.edweek.org/ew/toc/2008/06/05/. (Note: Education Week is offering free access to "Diploma Counts" through June 10.)

OSDFS GRANTS

On June 4, Secretary Spellings announced new awards under two discretionary grant programs administered by the Department's Office of Safe and Drug-Free Schools (OSDFS). First, she announced $24 million in grants to 92 school districts in 34 states to help them enhance and fortify their readiness and emergency management plans. Plans must address all four phases of emergency management: prevention-mitigation, preparedness, response, and recovery. Plans must also commit districts to: (1) coordinate with officials in local government, law enforcement, public safety, public health, and mental health; (2) train school officials in emergency management; and (3) supply a method for communicating emergency and reunification procedures to parents. Second, she announced $5.78 million in grants to 49 districts and other entities in 20 states to develop and implement -- or expand -- school-based mandatory random or voluntary drug testing programs for students in grades 6-12. Projects must be part of a comprehensive drug prevention program in the schools served and cover the referral to counseling or treatment of students identified as users. Projects must also be consistent with constitutional principles and state and federal laws and ensure the confidentiality of testing results. FOR MORE INFORMATION, PLEASE GO TO http://www.ed.gov/news/pressreleases/2008/06/06042008.html AND http://www.ed.gov/programs/drugtesting/08awards.html.

Also: The Bystander Study, a joint effort by the Department and Secret Service, identifies what might be done to encourage students to share information they learn about potential school-based violence. FOR MORE INFORMATION, PLEASE GO TO http://www.secretservice.gov/ntac/bystander_study.pdf.

CONDITION OF EDUCATION 2008

On May 29, the Department's National Center for Education Statistics (NCES) released its annual report (required by law) on the condition of education in the U.S. "The Condition of Education 2008" includes 43 indicators in five major areas -- participation in education, learner outcomes, student effort and educational progress, elementary and secondary education contexts, and postsecondary education contexts. (Later this summer, NCES will release a special analysis on community colleges.) Among the findings: in 2009-10, public school enrollment is expected to top 50 million students for the first time in history; in 2005-06, about one-third of African-American students and one-third of Hispanic students attended high-poverty schools, compared with 4% of white students; and, since 1970, women's undergraduate enrollment has increased more than three times as fast as men's. FOR MORE INFORMATION, PLEASE GO TO http://nces.ed.gov/programs/coe/.

Also: An NCES First Look presents findings from the Integrated Postsecondary Education Data System (IPEDS) spring 2007 data collection, including enrollment, graduation rates, and financial statistics. FOR MORE INFORMATION, PLEASE GO TO http://nces.ed.gov/pubsearch/pubsinfo.asp?pubid=2008173.

Also: What Works Clearinghouse (WWC) quick reviews are designed to provide practitioners and policymakers with timely and objective assessments of the quality of the research evidence from recently released research papers and reports. FOR MORE INFORMATION, PLEASE GO TO http://ies.ed.gov/ncee/wwc/quickreviews/.

SUPPLEMENTAL STUDENT AID

With all the talk about college loans, don't forget about grants! Pell Grant-eligible students who participate in a recognized secondary school program of study may qualify to receive an Academic Competitiveness (AC) grant of up to $750 for the first-year of higher education and up to $1,300 for the second-year of higher education. The Department's Office of Postsecondary Education (OPE) has updated the list of recognized programs for each state for students graduating in 2008 (see http://www.ed.gov/admins/finaid/about/ac-smart/2008/state-programs-08.html). Additionally, National Science and Mathematics Access to Retain Talent (SMART) grants tender $4,000 to third- and fourth-year Pell Grant-eligible students who major in math, science, or critical foreign languages; are enrolled full-time; and maintain a 3.0 GPA in college. FOR MORE INFORMATION, PLEASE GO TO http://www.ed.gov/about/offices/list/ope/ac-smart.html.

QUOTE TO NOTE

"[T]he best way, by far, to improve economic opportunity and to reduce inequality is to increase the educational attainment and skills of American workers.... As we think about improving education and skills, we should also look beyond the traditional K-12 and four-year college system, as important as it is, to recognize that education should be lifelong and can come in many forms. Early childhood education, community colleges, vocational schools, on-the-job training, online courses, adult education -- all of these are vehicles of demonstrated value in increasing skills and lifetime earning power."

-- Federal Reserve Chairman Ben Bernanke (6/4/08), addressing Harvard College's graduating seniors on Class Day

UPCOMING EVENTS

Professional resumes are being accepted for the 2009 Broad Superintendents Academy, a rigorous, 10-month executive management course designed to prepare leaders from both inside and outside education to become successful urban superintendents. Participants keep their current jobs while attending. All tuition and travel costs are covered. The submission deadline is July 20. FOR MORE INFORMATION, PLEASE GO TO http://broadacademy.org/.

In just over a week, the Department will be exhibiting at the Council of Chief State School Officers' National Conference on Student Assessment in Orlando (June 15-18). If you are attending this event, please stop by the Department's booth.

Subject: Meeting with Governor today, Fri., 06.06.08

Governor - I just received an email from Marty Rutherford asking if she could meet with you today for 30 minutes regarding AGIA messaging during the Special Session. This meeting would be between Marty, Kurt Gibson and Meg Stapleton(on phone). Marty is not presenting so would be available to your schedule. Janice
